School's out ... forever

Friday, last day at Philadelphia public schools for 2011-2012 year, was literally last day at eight schools Principal: 'Today was very sad, people crying and upset, especially students'

RICARD LARMA/METRO

▶ This bus was the last ever to pull away from Harrison Elementary, which closed for good yesterday.

As Harrison Elementary School principal Stefan Feaster-Eberhardt stood outside the building Thursday giving out hugs and waving goodbye to students for the summer, a former student asked, "Are they really gonna close it down?"

"They're really shutting the school down," she replied.

Harrison is one of eight schools the School Reform Commission voted to close in March as part of the district's Facilities Master Plan. For students, faculty and staff at Harrison, a K-8 school in North Philadelphia, the last day was a little more somber than usual.

"Today was very sad, a lot of people crying and upset, especially the students," said Feaster-Eberhardt, who was named principal last September. "Our [theme] has been 'Dare to be great.' ... We're trying to give them hope for the future."

Students and parents are not the only ones facing uncertainty about the district. Approximately 2,500 cafeteria workers, building engineers and other school employees represented by 32BJ Local 1201 could be laid off if the sides cannot reach a new agreement. Both sides have set Friday as a deadline and union members were in City Council again Thursday to lobby for support from lawmakers.

"We're currently in negotiations and hope to come up with an agreement that allows us to find savings that we'll be able to put back into schools," district spokesman Fernando Gallard said.

Another big question facing the district is whether it will receive additional funding from the city. The SRC approved a $2.5 billion budget that relies on an extra $94 million from a new property-tax assessment system, but Council support for that plan is very uncertain.

Irony in timing of Council honor

For a second straight year, City Council has heard from plenty of public schools advocates as it debates whether — and how — to increase funding for the beleaguered district.

"It's kind of ironic at this time when several hundred thousand kids' future is really in the balance that we are talking — that I'm getting an honor and I'm grateful for it, but I want to urge you to think of those children and their families and to think of a way to say 'yes' and fund the schools," said Shelly Yanoff, the outgoing executive director of Public Citizens for Children and Youth. Paterno will released: All his property to wife

PENNSYLVANIA. The family of former Penn State football coach Joe Paterno released his will Thursday after it was revealed that the document was sealed in Centre County court, according to a report from The Associated Press.

The document obtained by the AP dictated that all Paterno's personal items be left to his wife. His family said in a statement that the will had been sealed for the sake of privacy and they chose to release it to eliminate speculation.

Paterno died in January at the age of 85. METRO/AW

Council still stagnant in effort for new budget

CITY HALL. Mayor Michael Nutter rushed back from the U.S. Conference of Mayors Wednesday night as it appeared City Council's support for his property tax reform plan was declining.

An alternate proposal from Councilman Mark Squilla seemed to be gaining steam. It would delay the overhaul for a year until Council members receive the aggregate value of city properties, which sets the tax rate.

Tweet threat led to Cheyney havoc

A Cheyney University student could face criminal charges for a threat posted on social media Thursday that led officials to call in local police.

The message, which was posted on Twitter, referenced a "re-enactment of Columbine and Virginia Tech at Cheyney University," according to the Delaware County Daily Times, although a university spokeswoman could not confirm that.

The historically black university located in Delaware County alerted students on the school's website shortly after 9 a.m. that a threat against the school had been posted. Local police were called in to screen incoming cars and stationed around campus, but officials said classes were not affected and students were never in danger.

Campus officials were able to determine the student's identity through Twitter and police were interviewing him as of yesterday, said Cheyney spokeswoman Pam Carter. She would not reveal the student's name and could not say if the university would look to press charges.

"At this point, they're conducting an investigation. They will make the decision on the outcome," Carter said.

She said she did not know what led to the threat, but the Daily Times reported that the student was upset over parking tickets that affected his enrollment status.

No one was injured in the incident at the institution 25 miles from Philadelphia, which turned out to be nothing like Columbine or Virginia Tech. The Columbine High School shooting in 1999 left 12 students and one teacher dead. The 2007 rampage at Virginia Tech killed 33 people.

Former Borders to become Walgreens

CENTER CITY. Walgreens will open a flagship location at the former Borders at Broad and Chestnut streets after receiving zoning approval Wednesday, a real estate agency announced.

The store, which will be modeled after similar flagship locations on Wall Street in New York City and Madison Avenue in Chicago, will feature a wellness center, nail salon, hair salon and takeout food, according to Larry Steinberg, director of Fameco's Center City office.

Steinberg said the store is expected to open later this year with an undisclosed number of jobs.

Man on fire sues state police for Taser burns

A federal judge has given Philadelphia man Allen Brown the go-ahead to sue two state troopers who set him on fire with Tasers during a traffic stop on the Schuylkill Expressway four years ago.

Officers Peter Burghart and Justin LeMaire attempted to pull Brown over for riding a friend's plate-less motor scooter without a helmet, then Tased him at least seven times following a low-speed chase, according to court documents.

The pursuit ground to a halt when Brown tried to turn into an apartment complex and was knocked off the vehicle by a cable blocking its entrance.

Brown was first Tased four to five times by LeMaire for allegedly repeatedly resisting arrest. Five minutes later, Burghart joined in.

Both troopers testified they are trained in the risk of Taser use around flammable substances. "Their claim is that they were not aware of the presence of gasoline — or at least they didn't consider it," Cammisa said.

ALEXANDRA WIGGLESWORTH

"Mr. Brown was on the ground, gas spilled from the motorcycle and when they used the Taser on him, the Taser ignited the gasoline, causing him to be burned." GUS CAMMISA, BROWN'S ATTORNEY

Jury still labors to reach verdict in trial of priests

Deliberations headed into their eighth day on Thursday in the child sex abuse trial of a Roman Catholic monsignor, with sparks flying in the courtroom and signs of what one attorney called a jury "struggling" to reach a verdict.

Monsignor William Lynn, the highest-ranking church official to stand trial in the wide-ranging pedophilia scandal, is accused of conspiracy and child endangerment.

Prosecutors say in his job overseeing hundreds of priests in the Philadelphia Archdiocese, Lynn covered up child sex abuse allegations, often by transferring priests to unsuspecting parishes.

Also on trial is the Reverend James Brennan, accused of child endangerment and attempted rape of a 14-year-old child in 1996.

Brennan's lawyer on Thursday asked Common Pleas Court Judge M. Teresa Sarmina for a mistrial over her decision on Tuesday to allow the jury to hear testimony from an alleged victim in a 2008 canonical trial that was never submitted into evidence in this trial.

PHILADELPHIA POLICE DEPT.

▶ Lynn

The judge denied the mistrial request by defense attorney William Brennan, noting it should have been filed sooner.

He responded that in "court time," it had only been three hours because court was not in session on Wednesday.

"For you to now take this little arrogant attitude is not really helpful," the judge responded.

The jury has been deliberating since June 1 after hearing 10 weeks of testimony in the case that has rocked the archdiocese, the nation's sixth-largest with 1.5 million members.

"They seem to be struggling," the defense attorney said in court.

The judge rejected a request from jurors to rehear the complete testimony of three witnesses, telling them: "You are going to have to rely on your memories.

"It is just not possible to redo the trial again," she told them. REUTERS

Lynn's history

Here's what cases both sides have tried to make:

Prosecutors say Lynn's motive was to avoid scandal and any potential loss of money for the church. He supervised 800 priests, including investigating sex abuse claims, from 1992 to 2004.

The defense said Lynn tried to handle documented cases of pedophile priests, making a list in 1994 of 35 accused predators and writing memos to suggest treatment and suspensions. He was hampered because he could only make recommendations to the head of the archdiocese, Cardinal Anthony Bevilacqua.

Obama, Romney have economy swords drawn

SAMAD/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Barack Obama speaks on the economy during a campaign event at the Cuyahoga Community College in Cleveland, Ohio, on Thursday.

President Barack Obama cast his re-election battle with Mitt Romney as a clash between starkly contrasting philosophies and charged that his Republican rival would hollow out the middle class in a high-stakes speech on Thursday that could set the tone for months of intense campaigning.

Standing at a podium that bore the motto "Forward," Obama accused Romney of wanting to resurrect the Republican economic policies that preceded the 2008 crisis that plunged the United States into a recession from which it has not fully recovered.

"We can't afford to jeopardize the future by repeating the mistakes of the past. Not now, not when we've got so much at stake," Obama told a crowd of 1,500 at a community college in the battleground state of Ohio.

Obama's approval ratings have slipped to their lowest level since January — from 50 percent a month ago to 47 percent.

On a day when both candidates for the Nov. 6 presidential election spoke in Ohio, Romney struck first in a speech that ended four minutes before Obama took the stage.

"He's been president for three and a half years. And talk is cheap, actions speak very loud. If you want to see the results of his economic policies, look around Ohio, look around the country," Romney said at Seilkop Industries, a Cincinnati manufacturer.

Obama is coming off the roughest stretch of his presidency since last summer's debt-ceiling showdown and his Democratic allies worry that he could lose the election if it is simply a referendum on his efforts to boost the shaky economy. REUTERS

Two more witnesses detail abuse by Sandusky

Two more men testified in Jerry Sandusky's child sex abuse trial about being molested by the former Penn State assistant football coach, and a university campus detective on Thursday recalled Sandusky saying "I wish I were dead" after being confronted by an alleged victim's mother about showering with her son.

Prosecutors moved toward wrapping up their case in the closely watched trial in Pennsylvania. Judge John Cleland told jurors before breaking for lunch at the Centre County Court in Pennsylvania that prosecutors, who began presenting evidence on Monday, could conclude their case by Thursday afternoon.

The trial is taking place amid a heavy media presence in the small town of Bellefonte, about 10 miles from Penn State's main campus. REUTERS

Allen Stanford gets 110 years in Ponzi fraud

Allen Stanford, the former Texas billionaire convicted of running a $7 billion Ponzi scheme, was sentenced to 110 years in prison on Thursday.

Stanford was convicted of 13 charges including fraud and conspiracy by a jury in March for using fraudulent certificates of deposit sold by his offshore bank in Antigua to bilk thousands of investors out of their savings.

Bernie Madoff was sentenced to 150 years after pleading guilty to running a Ponzi scheme. REUTERS

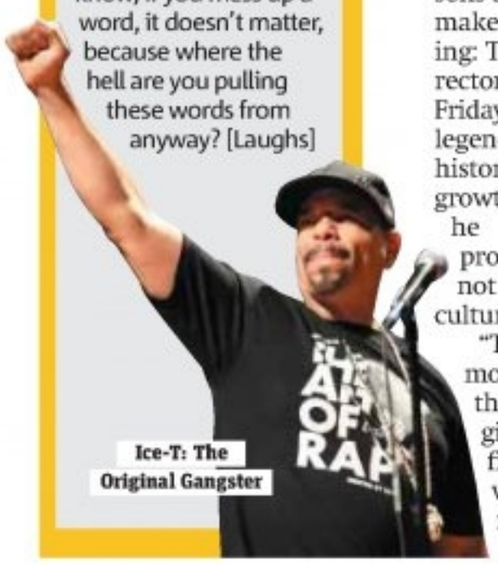
Ice-T and 38 of his favorite MCs provide a living history of hip-hop in his directorial debut, 'Something from Nothing: The Art of Rap'

▶ To hear more with Ice-T, download the June edition of the Metro Monthly Music Podcast for free, available at www.metro.us/mixtape and on iTunes.

Hip-hop is reaching an age where more and more of its most high-profile practitioners never knew a time when it did not exist. That's one of the reasons that Ice-T felt compelled to make "Something from Nothing: The Art of Rap." For his directorial debut, which opens Friday, he rounded up 38 rap legends to document an oral history of the genre's birth and growth. Through this method he unveils the creative process of an art form that is not often enough given the cultural credit it deserves.

"This film isn't about the money, the cars, the jewelry, the girls," he says at the beginning of the movie. "This film is about the craft, what it takes to write a rap, what goes on inside the heads of the masters."



Ice-T: The Original Gangster

It feels like this movie couldn't have been made at any other time. Most of the originators are still alive and vibrant, but they're not so entrenched in the game that they're above being nostalgic.

When you get to the point where hip-hop is old enough that people can look back at it and reflect, it's much better than catching it in the moment, because when you catch an artist in the moment, there's no mistakes. Everything is right, everything is on point, there's no weakness. I think that when you get older you've been through it, you have humility and you can laugh at it. At the end of the movie, you see all of the RIPs we put on there. ... This has been around long enough that we've lost many, many rappers. I wanted to catch this now.

It seems now like we're seeing the emergence of the first MCs to be born into hip-hop, whereas all of the people in the movie saw the beginning of it.

Yeah, and you know there will be a Part Two [to this movie]. I don't know if I'll do it. The next generation will write their legacy down. It wasn't time for me to go out and really start the movie with the new artists. I have to start it where I started, and my trek was that I was an L.A. rapper and I moved to New York and New York kind of put me in the game, and they told me that this requires skills. They also taught me you've got to respect it. They said, "If we're going to let you into hip-hop and we're going to give you the cosign, Ice-T, never turn your back on it, never disrespect this, because this is something that's serious." I try to do this with the film.

Quoted

"If we're going to let you into hip-hop and we're going to give you the cosign, Ice-T, never turn your back on it, never disrespect this, because this is something that's serious."

ICE-T ON THE ETHOS THAT THE NYC HIP-HOP COMMUNITY INSTILLED IN HIM

The film does have a serious and reverential tone, but there are also times when you're laughing at yourself, reminiscing about even the name of your first crew, which I'll have to remind readers was called the Eliminators Pimpin' Association.

[Laughs] The funny thing about that is that us — me and Lord Jama — we're naming off who we were before you ever heard of Ice-T. I was saying those rhymes before I even knew about rap, we were just the Eliminators Pimpin' Association, trying to talk some s—, and he was Kid Magic.

Do you have a lot of old rhymes that you're able to laugh at?

The rhymes I used to say, I would say them for the gang members, and it was like a form of what they called toasting back in the day. You say a rhyme and they would be entertained, and there was no music. And when I first heard the music, I was like, "I can do that! I'm already doing that!"

PAT HEALY
pat.healy@metro.us

Q&A

Would you have ever shared these memories with other MCs when you were coming up? Or would that be a sign of the weakness you mentioned?

You know, we always chop it up like that together. ... You saw the Eminem I know, not the Eminem on the records. ... We have a lot of respect in hip-hop. The rappers know who's who. It ain't just because there's a camera there; I got to capture my friends as I know they are, and I know they're all cool. I know the way Rakim is and I know how Kanye will be. If you say, "Go rhyme," he'll go crazy.

And he really did!

I know! He was like, "I'm in Ice's movie, and they wanna see me spit" and to me ... when you watch Kanye, it's like you're watching Jimi Hendrix in a solo. All of a sudden he's just in one of his runs and you can't stop. We kept the camera running and you know, if you mess up a word, it doesn't matter, because where the hell are you pulling these words from anyway? [Laughs]

TRACY BENNETT

'That's My Boy'

Director: Sean Anders
Cast: Adam Sandler, Andy Samberg
Rating: R Grade: D

What can you say about a movie that tries to resurrect Vanilla Ice's career and almost succeeds? It's hard to tell what was more irritating: Sandler's sketch acting style, Andy Samberg's unfunny, wussy role, the pedophilia and incest motifs or the desperate, forced "edginess" of the movie. But like a train wreck, you can't look away.

The whole movie is dripping in '80s and '90s nostalgia — probably the decades when Sandler's comedy made most sense.

MARK BRESLIN

Nothin' but a good time

The team on hair metal-musical 'Rock of Ages' remembers 1987

While breakout star Diego Boneta wasn't even born yet in 1987, when "Rock of Ages" takes place, his colleagues certainly have some memories of what the world was like 25 years ago.

Actress Malin Akerman:

My mom was an aerobics instructor, and she liked to go out dancing, so I would always remember her in her outfits and I was always pining after her like, "I wish I could be her, I wish I could wear those outfits." She'd wear her tight blue spandex pants and her big hair and red nails. I always wanted to perm my hair back then, but my mom wouldn't let me. So I finally got to live that dream out in this movie. But back then, I don't know about you but I was wearing the horrible fluorescent T-shirts [and] acid-wash jeans. It was really, really ugly. I like the '80s, though. I think it's pretty sexy with girls in high jeans and the rock T-shirts or leather — anything leather is always great.

Screenwriter Justin Theroux:

Oh, man. Endless frustration with girls. In '87 I was 15, I guess. I remember hairspray and lots of Dippity-do. My first record was "Dirty Deeds Done Dirt Cheap" by AC/DC. In the same way when I was in my 20s there was that weird '70s nostalgia when bellbottoms came back in, there's kind of a similar thing with the '80s now. To me, the '80s were just kind of fun memories because nothing's really gone wrong yet in your life, so all the music is very nostalgic for me, too.

▶ Justin Theroux rocks on.

Director Adam Shankman:

In 1987, I was actually in New York. I had just dropped out of school. I was a waiter working at El Rio Grande on Third Avenue. I was starting to do musical theater. I was going to a lot of clubs — I was going to Danceteria, the Palladium, Area at the end of the Area years. I was a little more suspenders-and-skinny-tie guy. It was horrifying. I freely admit to the ugliness of it.

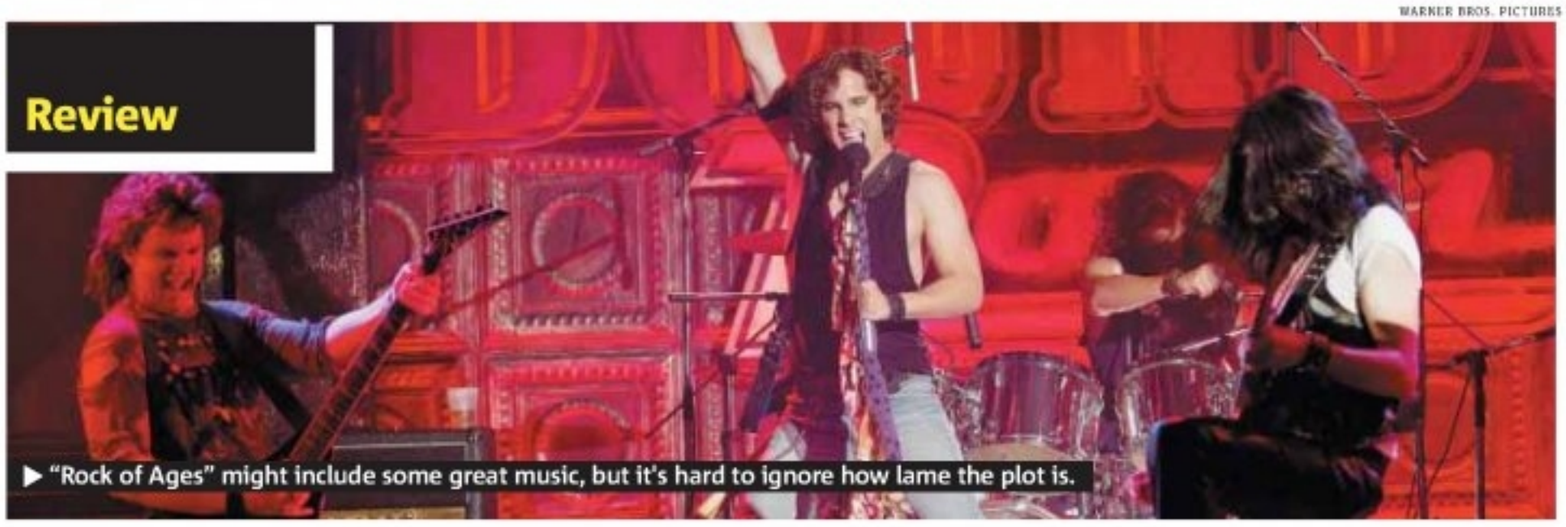
WARNER BROS. PICTURES

Review



▶ "Rock of Ages" might include some great music, but it's hard to ignore how lame the plot is.

Every rose has its thorn

'Rock of Ages'
Director: Adam Shankman
Cast: Tom Cruise, Alec Baldwin, Julianne Hough
Rating: PG-13 Grade: ❶❷❸❹❺

Borrowed from Broadway, "Rock of Ages" takes the '80s hair-band musical and turns it into a celebrity sing-along that's as shallow as Poison lyrics. Assembled by Adam Shankman ("Hairspray") and featuring the likes of Tom Cruise (who can sing!) and Alec Baldwin (who can't), it wedges in a pencil-thin romance between two struggling singers in the L.A. club scene. It aims to be nothin' but a good time, but when Cruise isn't strutting around imitating Axl Rose, the story is banal.

Emeril fixes your grilling hangups

Ah, barbecue season! The days are longer, the fireflies are twinkling and the grill is raring to go. But if the thought of going anywhere near a propane tank sends you shivers colder than an ice cream brain freeze, fear not: Emeril Lagasse, star chef, restaurateur and cookbook author, is here to help. He outlines the mistakes grillers make and how to avoid them.

▶ Have burning questions for Emeril? He'll be hosting his Grilling Survival Facebook hot line on June 28 between 3 and 4 p.m. Eastern time at www.facebook.com/emerilsgrilling.

▶ Not having enough fat on your meat: "You have to have a good percentage of fat," Lagasse says. "You've gotta have at least 10 to 15 percent fat or it's not gonna be great."

▶ Not letting your meat settle: "We season ground meat and we overwork it. We never let the air come out of it and let it rest. Immediately after we overwork it we just put them right on the grill and we wonder, what happened to this burger? If you season it the night before and then take the meat out, let it get to room temperature, then shape it into burgers, then put them on the grill, it makes a huge difference."

▶ Constantly flipping a burger: "People are constantly flipping the burger over and pressing on the burger," he says. "Leave the burger alone. Let it cook one side and then turn it over. Don't press the juices out of it."

▶ Layering your burger the wrong way: When Julia Child came on Lagasse's show, she gave him a lesson in burger prep that he now passes on. "If the burger doesn't touch one part of the bun, then the burger's gonna slide," he says. "What a lot of people do is put lettuce, tomato, and then they put the burger, and then they dress the other side of the bun and, then they put the onion on top of that, and they put the bun on it, so the meat really doesn't have any friction. You take a bite and it's almost in your lap. Julia explained to me that one part of the burger has to touch the bun and then you can build it from there."

▶ Grilling fish wrong: "The biggest mistake that people make is that the grill is too hot. It should be more like depending on what type of fish — steak or more of a filet," says the chef, who recommends a fish spatula for handling the delicate protein. And before you even fire up the grill, let your fish settle as you would meat. "Take your protein out of the refrigerator for at least 20 minutes, and let it just come up to room temperature. Then, brushing it with oil on both sides and then seasoning it is the key."

MEREDITH ENGEL

His grilling essentials

▶ 1. Emeril's Original Essence: Lagasse's secret ingredient has a tangy, sweet, peppery taste. $3.79.

▶ 2. Bam! Burger Hamburger Seasoning: "It's two tablespoons for a pound of meat. It's pretty amazing stuff." $3.79.

▶ 3. Emeril's Kicked Up Horseradish All Natural Mustard: "I'm a mustard guy," the chef says. $2.69.

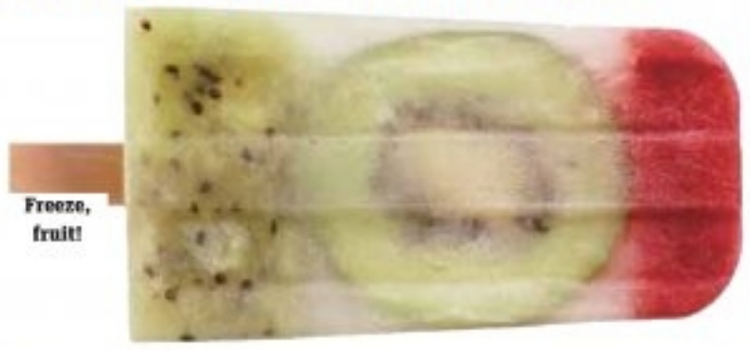
DON'T STOP MAKE IT POP

- Popsicles are where it's at when the weather heats up
- Mix a batch with fresh fruit — or a little booze

Krystina Castella's new "Pops!" book will make you happy just sitting on the shelf. Imagine if you actually make one of the icy confections? Here's how to wow them at your next barbecue or rooftop soiree.



Freeze, fruit!

Kiwi Pops

What's in them
- 1½ cups sugar
- 3 cups sliced kiwis (with or without the peel)
- ¾ cup fresh lime juice

Makes six 8-ounce pops

How to make them
In a saucepan, combine 1 cup water and the sugar. Stir over low heat until the sugar dissolves. Refrigerate for 10 minutes to cool. Combine the kiwis and the lime juice in a food processor or blender. Process until smooth. Add the sugar water and 1 1/2 cups of cold water to the kiwi mixture and process again to combine. Pour the mixture into the pop molds; insert the sticks. Freeze for at least six hours. Remove from the freezer; let stand at room temperature for five minutes before removing the pops from the molds.

Grown-up ice pops

Popsicles, meet our good friend wine

What's better than sangria on a hot day? Frozen sangria! People's Pops, makers of hip seasonal popsicles, and award-winning New Zealand winery Kim Crawford Wines teamed up to create your new summertime tipsy treat.

Pinot noir-infused blackberry ice pops
What's in them:
1.5 pounds fresh, ripe blackberries (about 5 cups)
4 ounces dark organic cane sugar
4 ounces water
6-8 ounces 2010 Kim Crawford Pinot Noir

Makes 10 pops

How to make them: Combine sugar and water in saucepan. Gently heat while stirring until sugar dissolves. Allow to cool completely. Lightly puree or mash blackberries. Add six ounces of cooled liquid sugar and six ounces of wine; taste. If stronger pinot noir flavor is desired, add remaining two ounces. Pour into molds, add sticks and freeze.

'BANG! BANG!' YOU'RE HILARIOUS

Comedy vet Scott Aukerman talks 'Comedy Bang! Bang!' Other talk shows, beware — he'll fight you

IFC found something funny in its basement: Scott Aukerman. Accompanied by comedian-musician Reggie Watts, Aukerman — a comedy icon with credits including "Mr. Show" and the popular Earwolf comedy podcasts — acts as giddy impresario on his new TV show, "Comedy Bang! Bang!". Aukerman invited Metro into his weird and hilarious world. We barely made it out alive.

What opportunities are you excited to access now, as you move from the podcast to the TV show? What's new?
Well, you know, I'm finally a celebrity. When you're a celebrity — and this is something people don't know — but it's a lot like becoming the president. The Celebrity Secret Service takes you aside and lets you know all of the state secrets: what's in Area 51, who killed JFK.

Mr. Aukerman's neighborhood

- The set is almost a character itself, and you're a combination of Wayne Campbell, Pee-Wee Herman and Dick Cavett.
- It's been designed to look like your grandpa's basement, if your grandpa was a weirdo who wanted to murder you.

Ooh! What is in Area 51?
Well, I can't tell you, you're not a celebrity. That's the thing, the Celebrity Promise, that we'll never tell non-celebrities. I'm just excited for people to see the show. I've been working on it for so long and I'm really proud of it. Fans of the podcast shouldn't come in expecting it to be exactly the same. It's like "The Avengers" movie. By all accounts, that started as a comic book.

Get out of here! Is that one of those celebrity secrets?
No, no. And before that, it was cave paintings, and cavemen would tell each other stories about Batman. But anyway, I think it would be really boring to have just been pointing a camera at someone reading a comic book out loud. It's the same with my show — it's very visual. It's inspired by the podcast, but I don't think you really need to know what a podcast is or know my show at all to enjoy it. I made it for everyone.

CHRIS BAGAZZO/IFC

Is it hard to visually translate characters from the podcast?

It's just being confident about the choices we make. It's more of a process of working with each of the comedians and seeing what they want to do, and hopefully the audience will come along with it. Like Paul F. Tompkins had very specific ideas about how he wanted to look like Andrew Lloyd Webber, which is apparently not at all! People are fine with it. The less hard you try in that regard, the easier it is for people to laugh.

You learned that on "Mr. Show?"

Well, I think that just being silly is what I really respond to. Be silly, move quickly.

Do you call this a talk show?

I think it's a talk show. In "real" talk shows, the host always knows what the guest is going to say. So, my show is more real than all of those shows.

Them's fightin' words.

I will fight any talk show!

The larger world's her stage

Kara Lee Corthron takes on race, redemption, violence and home in her new play set in Iceland

INTERACT

▶ Phyllis Johnson and Jered McLenigan star in "Etched in Skin on a Sunlit Night."

Both the election of Barack Obama and Iceland's economic crisis are central to Kara Lee Corthron's new play, but neither of them had even occurred when she began working on it. At the time, in late 2007, Iceland wasn't a country-sized metaphor for financial hubris; it was simply affordable.

"I was doing research on countries that I could afford to travel to at the time," Corthron says with a laugh. "I was looking at these beautiful images of Iceland, pictures of fjords, and I just happened to discover this book."

That book, a children's story with a shockingly racist title, fuels a central debate in "Etched in Skin on a Sunlit Night," currently in its world premiere run by InterAct Theatre Company. Set in Iceland during the 2008 U.S. presidential election, the play is bursting with ideas about race, redemption, violence and home. It also features Sigur Ros frontman Jonsi as a fairy-like fantasy character.

"I like having fantastical or magical elements if it makes sense or feels right for the play," Corthron says. "Stylistically, I'm interested in teetering between the real world and the dream world, and I explore that in just about all of my plays."

While the play, commissioned by InterAct in 2009, at times feels overflowing with such ideas, Corthron insists she'd rather leave audiences with too much than too little to think about. "I'm really not interested in writing plays about two people in an apartment talking about getting married," she says. "I like having a larger world on stage."

These days, Jimmy Bruno plays what he wants The Philly guitarist on why he'll never get tired of jazz

After returning home to Philadelphia, Jimmy Bruno didn't touch his personalized Sadowsky guitar for a full two years. He had spent more than a decade in Las Vegas, playing the same tunes over and over to hordes of tourists, plus another half-dozen years in Hollywood, recording soundtracks for television and film.

"I was just tired of being a gun for hire," he says from his home in Abington. "I didn't have any passion for it anymore. It was, pretty much, you know: Go in, play your part, get your check and see ya later."

But around 1991, a few Philly friends convinced him to front a guitar-fueled straight-ahead quartet. And with the help of Jack Prince, a local restaurant owner and jazz fanatic, Bruno soon had a modest recording deal with Concord Records. Seven albums later, the 58-year-old axeman is enjoying the second career of his dreams, picking precisely the kind of melodies that are so close to his heart: gentle, measured, passionate renditions of mid-20th century classics.

"I grew up feeling that straight-ahead jazz was a much more sophisticated kind of music. It was endlessly interesting to my ears. And it still is," says Bruno. "No matter how many times I play these tunes, they're so harmonically rich that I never get tired of them."

This weekend, Bruno's quartet will roll into Chris' Jazz Cafe for a two-night stand with a special guest, New York guitarist Peter Bernstein. "I like to read the audience. That really determines what I play," says Bruno. "I've been doing this for a long time. I can usually get a feel for where they're at."

Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Today, Rihanna wants to clear something up, Joel McHale is impressed, David Lynch is about to get Twitter trolled and Elizabeth Banks is worried about a colleague.

@Rihanna
Nonsense! I'm not sick! I pushed my trip to London back to go spend time with my family! Sorry kiddos

@joelmchale
During my flight back the 12 yr old girl sitting in front of me watched the original "The Thing" from 1951. I'm in awe of her cool.

@DAVID_LYNCH
Dear Twitter Friends, in your opinion, is America a good country or a bad country? Is America changing for the better or the worse?

@ElizabethBanks
Is everybody as bummed as me that John Malkovich's best friend seems to be Siri?

Rihanna

THE WORD

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

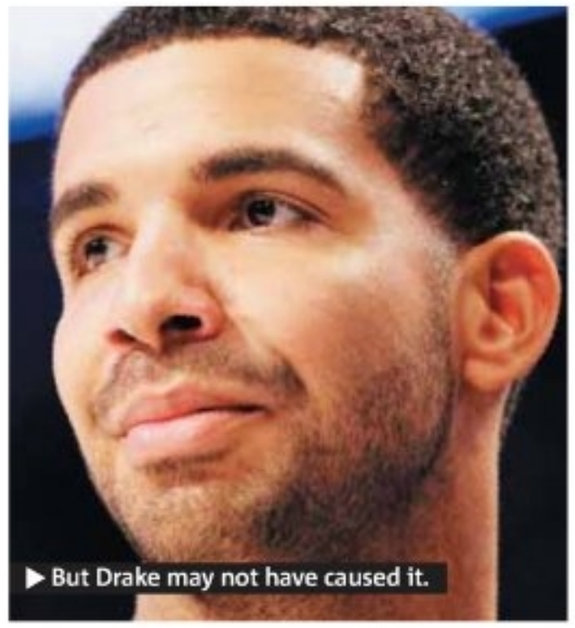
Ladies, this is unbecoming

▶ Chris Brown has a scrape on his face.



▶ But Drake may not have caused it.

At first, things seemed pretty nice and tidy with the Chris Brown and Drake brawl that broke out early Thursday morning at Manhattan nightclub W.i.P. Both hip-hop stars have dated Rihanna in the past, both have a habit of gossiping in pop songs, and one has a history of anger management problems: Case closed.

But now, Drake's people are telling TMZ that the rapper wasn't responsible for the gash on Brown's face that popped up on Instagram Thursday morning. "Drake did not participate in any wrongdoing of any kind," his rep tells the site. "He was on his way out of the club when the altercation began."

Another source claims that Philly rapper Meek Mill was the one with the problem, and hit Brown with a bottle after a shouting match. No arrests were made, and all of the boldface names were gone by the time police arrived.

Brown, for one, seems to back up at least the bottle part. His Twitter feed has since been airbrushed by publicists, but at one point after the incident it read, "How u party wit rich n* that hate? Lol... Throwing bottles like girls? #shameonya!."

Well, someone is certainly getting left out of the Cheesecake Factory shopping trip this weekend. As soon as a catty note surfaces on the bathroom wall, we're going to call it: Lamest hip-hop fight ever.

Josh Duhamel knows the way to our heart

After his beloved rescue pup Meatloaf passed away, Josh Duhamel — also known as Mr. Fergie — is working with PetSmart Charities to promote pet adoption.

"[Meatloaf] was so appreciative of us and giving him a home," Duhamel tells UsMagazine.com. The actor now tells everyone to adopt "not because it's the right thing to do, but because they truly make the best pets."

But before they adopt another friend for their other dog, Zoe, the couple is hoping to add a baby to the family.

"We're going to focus on a human first," says the actor. "We're going to focus on raising a human and then maybe we'll get a dog after that."

Your call, Josh. But you know who will never, ever thank you for giving them a home? A 14-year-old human.

Name dropping hall of fame

By now, Hugh Jackman is used to being mobbed by fans, but his 12-year-old son, Max, doesn't always appreciate it. "He doesn't like when people come up to me on the street. He would much prefer if nobody knew who I was," the actor tells Parade.com "Although, I've seen him in social situations when he didn't think I was listening, and he once said to a girl, 'Well, my dad is Wolverine.' So when it came to try to talk to this girl, apparently it came in handy!"

Not bad at all, kid. The only thing we'd possibly rather hear is "My dad is Tyler Durden."

Talking points

Gyllenhaal has time, ladies

Jake Gyllenhaal is nothing if not persistent. Though Minka Kelly reportedly turned him down flat when he asked her out last fall, the pair apparently did eventually go out a few times recently, according to Us Weekly. "Minka wasn't into Jake when he first pursued her," a source says, explaining that the actress "decided to give Jake another chance" after her romance with Wilmer Valderrama fizzled out. But it looks like things between Gyllenhaal and Kelly didn't last, either: "It was never serious, and it's over now," the source says.

Johansson is too sexy for her art

Scarlett Johansson gets a lot of attention for her beauty, but it's not something she's exactly thrilled about. "I don't like being labeled as 'the sexiest woman alive.' As an actress I prefer to maintain the anonymity," Johansson says in an interview with Grazia Italia. And as for being a role model for other women? She'd rather not. "There are so many wonderful women out there," Johansson says.

Cox and Arquette playing nice

In possibly the most amicable split in Hollywood history, Courtney Cox reportedly filed her divorce paper the same day as soon-to-be ex-husband David Arquette, also citing irreconcilable differences, according to TMZ. Like Arquette, Cox is seeking joint custody of their daughter and no spousal support, and she will represent herself in the proceedings. The biggest discovery is that the couple, married for 11 years before separating in 2010, did not have a prenup, so all of their community property will be divided equally. Cox is worth a reported $75 million, while Arquette is said to be worth $18 million.

There are no jokes on the high road

It's been a rough week for Lindsay Lohan, what with crashing her Porsche and allegedly lying to police about whether or not she was behind the wheel. And her dad, Michael Lohan, thinks everyone is ganging up on her unfairly. "Why doesn't the press emphasize that she went through an extremely traumatic accident that could have been fatal, but she still wants to prove herself and went back to work even against medical advice?" Michael tells Hollyscoop. As to how Lindsay is recovering, Michael says she is "still in some pain, but really well otherwise."

Ice-T and A for your weekend

As much as we love when photos of Coco surface, there isn't usually a good reason to share them with you — other than the obvious, of course. But now that Ice-T's documentary is hitting theaters this weekend, we bring you the best of his very curvy better half.

1 Eat your heart out, Angelina: Coco was rocking the ultimate slit back in 2006.

2 Let's just say Coco isn't one to hide from the Miami beach paparazzi. She gave them a little show in November.

3 What — did you think she was going to go with a demure Vera Wang? Coco let it all hang out when she renewed her vows to Ice-T last year.

4 We're afraid to ask about the candy: Ice-T, Seal and Coco dressed way up for Heidi Klum's 2010 Halloween party.

5 There's no shortage of these shots to choose from over the years, but we love that Coco was still happy to point out the obvious in April.

Can we acknowledge sad Olympics past?

It will be exactly 40 years since the massacre of Israeli athletes during the Olympic Games, but still the Olympic Committee refuses to devote one minute of silence to their memories. That is quite disgusting, and with the inclusion of one minute of silence in the 2012 Olympics, that disgraceful disregard of murder during the world's most peaceful international activity will finally end — but only if you raise your voice to make it a reality. Please do. DAVID KRONFELD, VIA E-MAIL

They want to steal all that we've got

RE: "TITLING ENTITLEMENT": I see Sam Khoury is back in the letters, and he again lies about the plans of the Republicans. They always talk of Social Security as an entitlement program and they want to cut it now, even though it can pay full benefits for 25-plus years. It is most certainly part of the safety net, as it pays survivor and disability benefits. And forget waste — they want to stop us from drawing down the $3 trillion dollars we have loaned the government from our FICA payments, all of which went to pay for tax cuts to the rich and for wars against brown people. They've got our money, and they intend to keep it. KEVIN DOWD, VIA E-MAIL

Capitalism not to blame — or is it?

It is unfortunate, and probably deliberate, that jobs are being sent overseas by U.S. corporations. But it is useless to blame capitalism. Our economic system has given the most to our citizens as compared to any other system, especially socialism. Perhaps leftists would be happier in communist North Korea or maybe in a place like Jonestown where that socialist monster Jim Jones snuffed out 900 lives with his Marxism. Is this what leftists want? If so, maybe I can help them with the plane fare. FRANK ST. GEORGE, VIA E-MAIL

Kelly Donnoe once again speaks of what I can only assume is another universe since it doesn't come close to matching the real facts. First off: Over the past few decades we have seen massive increases in American employee productivity, yet no increase in wages. Second: All the profit made from that increased productivity has gone right to CEOs and other top business executives in order to "retain the talent" that is solely responsible for massive losses, companies crumbling, billions in fraud and generally the destruction of the American economy and dream. Third: When 98 percent of a country lives in poverty the country lacks something needed for a strong economy — something called disposable income, which allows people to buy the products companies make, which is how a company makes profit. So Kelly Donnoe I would suggest you not only take an economics class, but you need to get up to speed on the facts of this universe, since we have seen for decades and especially recently that unions have been in decline — and with them, the size of the American middle class into poverty. Furthermore, during this decline the amount of money unions could pour into politics was dwarfed by business even before the Citizens United case. DOUGLAS P BROWN II, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Your instincts for spotting conditions that could produce gains for you are sharper than usual. You might not make a killing, but the more you find, the more it'll add up.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Having marvelous leadership qualities allows you to quickly instill optimism and enthusiasm in others. You shouldn't have any trouble getting all working for a common cause.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Although you may be a topic of discussion among your friends, there's no reason to be disturbed. If you could hear what they're saying, you'd be flattered.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. One secret to success is to give others what you desire, which would be a good course for you today. You've heard it before: If you want friends, be friendly. If you need help, aid others.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Something unusual might transpire that will be of enormous importance to you but not necessarily to anybody else — but don't let that stop you. You'll recognize it for its worth.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Bonds can be strengthened if you allow your companions the same freedom of expression that you expect from them. This simple rule has multiple benefits.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Some of the time you spend with friends should be devoted to them instead of to you and your interests. If you make your friends feel important, they'll repay you in kind.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. In order to do something successfully, you must first convince yourself that you're capable of it. Your limitations will only be as strong as you allow them to be.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. A pending project can easily be concluded to your satisfaction if and when you develop a plan to do so. For positive results, utilize all of your bright ideas.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. If you want to go out on the town with friends tonight, don't wait until the last minute. Contact your pals as early as possible to make the arrangements, before they have a chance to make other plans.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Don't grab the first item you see when shopping without first comparing prices and quality. Those small differences between one item and another could quickly add up.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. You're endowed with a winning combination of sound ideas and plenty of energy, but things won't just happen to you by chance. Have a game plan in hand. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Part picnic, part beer garden, part music venue, Morgan's Pier is a welcome addition to the Delaware banks

TAKE US TO THE RIVER

RICARD LABMA/METRO

Thanks to Morgan's Pier, Philadelphians now have something that they never did before: a riverfront bar that offers good food, beer, atmosphere and music. Opening in late May, the new American beer garden concept created by Four Corners Management's Avram Hornik and partners Sean Agnew (R5, Union Transfer) and Dave Pianka (Making Time) sits on the Delaware River waterfront just north of the Ben Franklin Bridge.

"We wanted it to be a bit different than the other Delaware Avenue options," says partner Agnew. "Something for 'the rest of us,' and I think we've done that."

With a capacity of 850, the Morgan's Pier deck boasts picnic tables made from salvaged wood and covered with colorful vintage umbrellas. There are 20 regional draft beers on tap (including options from Yards and Troegs), as well as 20 can beers (from PBR to Sixpoint Sweet Action). "The food's playful and fun," says Hornik about the menu, which was created by David Katz (Mémé). "If you went to a chef's house for a backyard picnic, this is the food they'd serve." Grilled corn on the cob and fried tomatoes are among the starter options, and there are several sandwiches, including a sirloin burger and pulled pork. As for the vegans, there are several choices, such as the vegan chorizo tacos and the grilled portabella sandwich.

"If you went to a chef's house for a backyard picnic, this is the food they'd serve."
AVRAM HORNIK

And then there's the music. A few weekends ago, Morgan's Pier welcomed DJs Diplo and LCD Soundsystem's James Murphy (both in town for the Roots Picnic), and last weekend was the first live music event with local bands Bleeding Rainbow and Creepoid. There will be free afternoon concerts on Saturdays throughout the summer, with shows by Free Energy, Grandchildren and Pissed Jeans scheduled for upcoming weeks. Music lovers will also notice that Morgan's Pier spins all vinyl records, and they play entire albums front to back. "It's rare in the digital age to be able to sit by the river, have a beer and listen to an entire album," says Hornik. "You can do that here."

CUBA LIBRA

▶ Cuba Libre gets some island inspiration next week.

Chef Guillermo Pernot's pop-up series borrows its name from Cuban "paladars," small, intimate restaurants set in chefs' homes that were some of the first private businesses permitted under Castro. Next week, Pernot will host chef Alain Rivera Santana of Havana's Doctor Cafe at his Old City restaurant for a trio of four-course collaboration dinners. Highlights from the menus include fresh corn pasta with sweet crab meat and chilled mango soup with aged rum ice cream — in other words, reservations are recommended.

Whiskey: Separating the wheat from the chaff

If your only experiences with whiskey were double-dog-dares to down shots in college, you might be intimidated to take another look at the amber-colored drink. But if you give it another go, you may be surprised by its warmth, complexity and ability to mingle well with what you probably already have in your kitchen. Let's wipe away any mistruths you've heard and get to the bottom of the glass.

Myth: The older, the better
"Older isn't necessarily better, it's just different," says Stephen Marshall, Dewar's global brand ambassador. He recommends older whiskey for the end of a night, "as your palate tires and you need a bit more flavor."

Myth: Whiskey is a man's drink.
Not so, says Heather Greene, a scotch expert and Glenfiddich ambassador.

"Women have an incredible ability to enjoy and nose beautiful whiskeys, and I don't see any reason why not women should come into the whiskey world and start enjoying it the way they've been enjoying wines. I think whiskey's the next frontier."

Want to learn more? Greene is the founder of the Mrs. Roberts Society, a single malt scotch society for women. For a schedule of events, visit www.glenfiddich.com.

Myth: There are only a few good whiskey cocktails.
Feel free to experiment beyond Old Fashioneds, Whiskey Sours and Manhattans the next time you fancy the spirit — your bartender knows the ropes.

"There are professional bartenders today who take their craft as seriously as chefs," says Rob Samuels, the chief operating officer of Maker's Mark and an eighth-generation bourbon distiller. "When bartenders choose Maker's Mark with their cocktails, we love that, we encourage that. I don't think there's necessarily a right way or a wrong way [to drink it]."

And speaking of Maker's Mark: It's the world's oldest operating bourbon distillery, and a must-see on the Kentucky Bourbon Trail.

Help yourself to some bourbon-flavored coffee before your tour, which will take you through every step of the bourbon-making, including the hand-tearing of labels and the hand-dipping of bottles into Maker's signature red wax. You'll even have the chance to hand-dip your own bottle to take home.

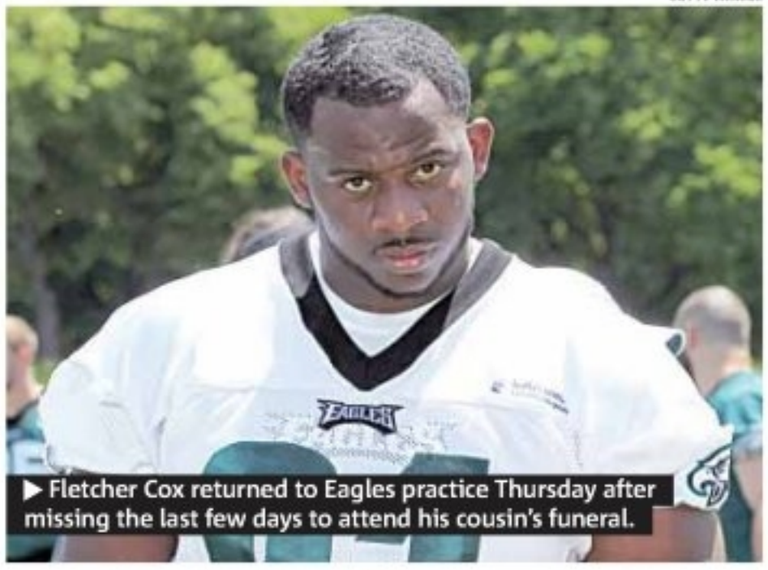
Rookie back at minicamp with a heavy heart

Cox left Eagles to attend cousin's funeral ● Team's top pick still mourning ● Happy to be back on field

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Fletcher Cox returned to Eagles practice Thursday after missing the last few days to attend his cousin's funeral.

Sometimes people forget football players are real people. They breathe the same air we breathe. They walk the same streets we walk. And when a professional athlete loses a loved one, someone he considered a brother, he feels the same pain we do.

Fletcher Cox returned to Eagles minicamp Thursday after spending the past few days in his hometown of Yazoo City, Miss. Unfortunately for Cox, the purpose of the trip wasn't recreational. He was there to mourn the loss of his cousin, Melvin Baker, who was killed last Friday in a car accident.

"Football took my mind off it today, me being back out there with the team, and everybody just smiling and just getting back at it," Cox said. "I'm the type of guy that likes to smile and have a lot of fun. Even when I was around his mom, the first thing we did was smile at each other."

Cox said the 21-year-old Baker was ejected from his vehicle and suffered head and chest trauma. Baker leaves behind his mom, two kids, and a younger sister and brother.

"He was the oldest of the family," Cox said. "He touched a lot of people."

Cox and Baker were the closest of friends and did everything together. If Cox hadn't been in Philadelphia at the time, he probably would have been in the car with him.

"If I had been at home, I would have been in the car with him," Cox said. "God has a plan for me. God has a plan for everybody, and I guess it was his time to go."

Cox was planning to fly back to Mississippi after Thursday's practice to comfort Baker's mom.

"She means a lot to me, she's like a mom, like my momma," he said.

No problem

Fletcher Cox is still without a contract as training camp looms. However, the rookie doesn't foresee any problem. "We should be getting a deal soon. It won't be a problem."

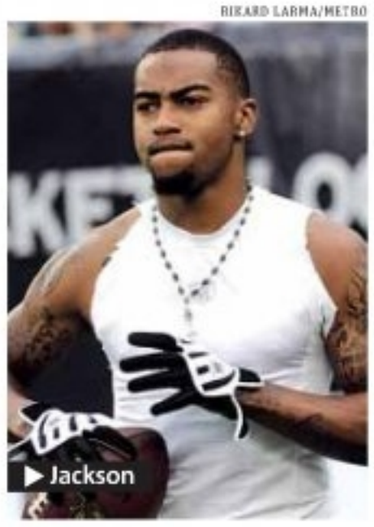
More intense Reid breaks Birds camp

RIKARD LARMA/METRO



Andy Reid wrapped up the team's full-team, minicamp Thursday by having his players work on red-zone drills. After practice, the coach gave a brief state-of-the-team address. The Eagles are off until rookies report to Lehigh for training camp on July 22.

"I love the energy and mindset right now," said Reid, noting that he had 100 percent attendance. "For nine weeks, these guys have been coming in here and grinding it. This is going to be a tough training camp for them, I've talked to the team about that."

Despite there being no contact during these spring minicamps — it's a glorified passing camp, with players running around in shorts, no pads — Reid believes it sets the foundation for accomplishing their goals — the ultimate one, of course, being the Super Bowl.

"You get all of those questions answered and again, depending on how you go about teaching it and how you go about defining your football team and how they attack that, that gives you the foundation to go win the Super Bowl," Reid said.

Several players noted there was a different vibe at this year's camp. Unlike last season, they had a full nine weeks to get to know each other. DeSean Jackson also commented that Reid seems more intense.

"I just feel the atmosphere is different," Jackson said. "I just think it's a special team this year." MIKE GREGER

Quoted

"I just see his intensity up a little bit ... I don't think he's gonna let anything stop that."
